INTRODUCTION

The Ohio State Bar Association (OSBA) compiled this report in order to provide a more complete picture of the legal profession in Ohio. The report is a reference for OSBA leaders so that we may better understand the practice of law in the state, from its impact on the economy to its makeup in terms of gender, ethnicity, geography and area of practice, as well as how OSBA membership contributes to and compares with the profession as a whole. The data here is compiled from many different sources, including the Ohio Supreme Court, OSBA membership data, the American Bar Association and the Ohio Access to Justice Foundation, as well as various studies commissioned by the OSBA to survey attorneys in Ohio.

The legal profession and association membership are in a state of rapid change and our hope is that we can provide a clear vision of where we are now, so that we can better prepare for where we are heading in the future.

LEGAL EDUCATION

Ohio law school enrollment began a steady decline in 2011. In 2017, law schools began to see their first uptick in enrollment numbers and 2020 maintained an upward trend of new law students.

Nationwide, women have outnumbered men in law schools for the fourth year in a row in 2020, according to the American Bar Association. Meanwhile, in Ohio, law school enrollment hovers near gender parity but women 1L students do outnumber men, with the gap increasing in 2020.

OHIO ATTORNEYS

Though law school enrollment figures paint a promising picture for the future of the legal profession, Ohio attorneys have a ways to go when it comes to achieving gender parity, closing the wage gap and attaining true racial diversity.

However, the legal profession is also one of the most giving industries, with attorneys being several times more likely to serve on the board of a nonprofit than other professions. Close to three quarters of attorneys in Ohio provide legal services at no cost to those in need and the value of pro bono services provided by Ohio lawyers trends steadily upward.
